

Department of History and Philosophy Fall 2012 History Course Guide

HISTORY

HIST 106-01 THE UNITED STATES TO 1865

11204 TU TH 02:00 PM – 03:15 PM Frink, S. Chicago Survey of main currents in the development of American institutions and values through the Civil War.

HIST 107 THE UNITED STATES SINCE 1865

 11205
 M W 2:00PM-3:15 PM
 Rung, M.
 Chicago

 11206
 TU TH 12:30 PM -1:45 PM
 Gellman, E
 Chicago

 11222
 M W 12:30 PM -1:45 PM
 Staff
 Schaumburg

Survey of main currents in the development of American institutions and values from Civil War to present.

HIST 111 THE WORLD TO 1500

11207 TU TH 11:00 AM-12:15 PM Chamberland, C. Chicago 11223 TU TH 12:30 PM -1:45 PM Staff Schaumburg

World history from the beginnings of civilizations to the age of discovery, covering several major regions of the world: Southwest Asia, East and South Asia, Europe, Africa, and the Americas. Comparison of the civilizations in these regions and contacts between them. Emphasis on social organization, ideas, technologies, and culture.

HIST 112-01 THE WORLD SINCE 1500

11208 M W 12:30 PM -1:45 PM Staff Chicago

Major themes and topics in world history from the age of discovery to the present. Comparison of the civilizations of Southwest Asia, East and South Asia, Europe, Africa, and the Americas. Emphasis on social organization, ideas, technologies, and culture.

HIST 280-10 TOPICS: AMERICAN CIVIL RIGHTS

11210 TU 06:00 PM – 08:30 PM Gellman, E. Chicago

Prerequisites: University Writing Requirement MET

Students in this methods class will examine the history of civil rights movements in modern American history. While exploring this topic, we will also learn how to think, debate, and write like historians. Readings and assignments allow students to analyze and evaluate different methodologies, sources, and approaches to the study of the past. These assignments will then gradually build into the selection of your own primary-source research, proposal, and writing of a paper on a particular historical topic concerning U.S. social movements.

HIST 302/402-10 RENAISSANCE & REFORMATION

11211/11217 TH 6:00PM – 8:30 PM Chamberland, C. Chicago

Prerequisites: HIST 111

Society, economics, ideas, and politics in Western European from mid-13th century to 17th-century religious wars.

HIST 315-10/415-10 LATIN AMERICA TO INDEPENDENCE

11212/11218 W 6:00PM -8:30 PM Staff Chicago

Prerequisites: HIST 111 or 112 with min grade of C

This course analyzes the history of Latin America from pre-Hispanic times to the revolutions of Independence. Readings will focus on political, social and cultural historical processes, including the following topics: Amerindian societies, conquest, colonization, empire, the Atlantic World, frontiers, environmental changes, gender, race & ethnicity, slavery, administration and corruption.

HIST 326-01 TOP: CIVIL WAR IN HIST &MEMORY

11213 TU TH 12:30 PM -1:45 PM Frink, S. Chicago

Prerequisites: HIST 107 or HIST 106

This is a course on the political and cultural memory of the Civil War. We will explore how historians and the public have remembered the Civil War and how this memory has changed over time. We will also examine how debates over the meaning of the war shaped both the conflict and the public's memory. We will examine a variety of sources, including secondary sources (both academic and popular), traditional primary sources such as letters, speeches, and memoirs, public sources of history, such as national parks, commemorations, reenactments, and memorials, and forms of popular culture, including film. Among the subjects to be examined include the commemoration of the dead, the place of slavery in the memory of the Civil War and the nation's consciousness and conscience, disputes over the teaching of the Civil War, the role of the Confederate flag, changing perceptions of notable figures, and the experiences and reminisces of regular soldiers and citizens.

HIST 341-20 TOP: WOMEN & THE RUSSIAN REVOLUTION

11226 TH 2:00 PM – 4:30 PM Chulos, C. Schaumburg

This course will examine women's struggle to expand their public role and legal rights in Russia in the half century prior to the Bolshevik Revolution in 1917. Key topics include: women's participation in organized revolutionary movements; challenges to everyday meanings of gender, marriage, motherhood, and sexuality; and contributions to the eventual overthrow of the tsarist regime.

HIST 341-24 TOP: WESTERN UTOPIAS

12316 TU 6:30 PM-9:00 PM Stein, L. Schaumburg

Prerequisites: HIST 112 Or HIST 122

HIST 341-99 TOP: HIST OF PUBLIC HEALTH- HON

11214 TU 2:00 PM - 4:30 PM Chamberland, C. Chicago

Prerequisites: HIST 112 Or HIST 122

This course will explore the ways in which changing scientific and philosophic definitions of health and disease have framed population health concerns, such as quarantine, occupational safety, maternal health, epidemiology, and fears of contagion, both real and imagined. By focusing on the intersection of health, politics, and ideas of gender, race, class, and ethnicity, this course will adopt a comparative approach and emphasize the relationship between social context and transformations in public health practice and policy in contexts ranging from ancient Rome to twentieth-century Chicago.

HIST 342-24 TOP: DIPLOMATIC HISTORY

12316 TH 06:30 PM – 09:00 PM Johnson, M. Schaumburg

Prerequisites: HIST 107

An examination of modern diplomatic history and global linkages.

HIST 352/452-10 MAKING MODERN AMERICA, 1880-1924

11215/11220 M 6:00 PM-8:30 PM Rung, M. Chicago

Prerequisites: HIST 107 with min grade of C.

Populism, the Progressive Movement, immigration, rise of the Jim Crow, nationalism, and emergence of the US as a world power.

HIST 365/465-01 BLACK CHICAGO HISTORY/CULTURE 1770-1960

11216/11221 TH 2:00 PM - 4:30 PM Gellman, E. Chicago

Prerequisites: HIST 107 Or HIST 228 Or HIST 229

The role and impact of the African-American community on the culture, society, politics, and economy of the city of Chicago from DuSable to 1960.

HIST 368-20 US History 1789-1860

11227 W 3:30 PM – 6:00 PM Frink, S. Schaumburg

Prerequisites: HIST 106 or HIST 228 with min grade of C

Emergensce and development of a new government under the constitution of 1787. Political reformation from the election of Andrew Jackson to the election of Linclon; Jacksonian Democracy; importance of slave labor and wage lobor as cores of the market economy; religious based reform; countervailing influences of nationalism and sectionalism

HIST 429-10 READING IN EUROPEAN HISTORY

11219 TU 06:00 PM – 08:00 PM Chulos, C. Chicago

Note: Graduate standing.